Springbrook is the leader in providing innovative support for people with intellectual and developmental disabilities. With locations across New York State, we offer service options that span all aspects of a person’s life.

A MESSAGE FROM THE CEO

Welcome to the Winter 2025 edition of Inspirations. Each time I prepare to write this letter, I take the opportunity to read the latest draft. Reviewing the magazine allows me to reflect on the past six months, reconnect with our mission, and to be once again reminded of the incredible work happening at Springbrook.

I am continually inspired by each person we support at Springbrook – their resilience, achievements, and ability to uplift those around them. I am equally inspired by each employee, who makes a difference each day, and by the generosity of our donors, whose support helps to transform good lives into even better ones.

This winter has brought a lot of snow, cold weather, and events that encourage us to reflect on what truly matters – our families, our friends, and the community we have built at Springbrook. The sight of students sledding down the hill outside of my office window brings joy to my day. The crisp air reminds me to be grateful for the warm, welcoming, and accessible space we create for those we serve. Challenges, both unexpected and profound, remind me to embrace the moments before us, cherish the people in our lives, and appreciate the meaningful work we do for the families and people we support at Springbrook.

As you read through this issue, take pride in all that we have accomplished together. Celebrate the moments that matter, and remember the difference you make at Springbrook.

Widmy AT BLACKSTONE

Written by:
Shaina Gormley

What kind of event features an ice cream truck and crowds of people in matching sweatshirts? Widmy Leveille-Orion thought just that when she stumbled upon Springbrook's Direct Support Professional (DSP) Appreciation Week in September 2023. Widmy had just dropped off her friend after church, as she did every week, when the event caught her attention. Curious, she decided to investigate and spoke with some of the employees there including Michael Basso, Director of Marketing and Public Relations. Michael explained, "We told her about Springbrook and the work we do, encouraged her to apply, and, of course, made sure she got some ice cream!"

Widmy has always found opportunities to care for others, such as most recently working toward her Licensed Practical Nurse (LPN) certification. In the past, she enjoyed her work as a nursing assistant working closely with patients and deepening her understanding

*"Springbrook is a great place to work
The people we support deserve to have people who care about them beyond a diagnosis."*

- Widmy Leveille-Orion

of practicing medicine. Now, she plans to continue her schooling and earn certifications to become an LPN.

Widmy applied for the position at Springbrook, and a few days later, she received an interview request at Blackstone Community Home in Binghamton, New York. The moment she arrived at Blackstone, she knew she wanted to work at Springbrook. "Dale Simmons, Day Habilitation Coordinator in Binghamton, opened the door and said 'Hi, thank you for coming early, thank you!' That, right there, just warmed my heart, and I thought, 'I have to get this job.'" The rest, as they say, is history.

Once Widmy began orientation, her interest in Springbrook grew. She identified with Springbrook's message of "putting people first." Widmy's warmth and dedication to leading with care and compassion are evident to anyone who spends time with her. During orientation, she learned about the importance of word choice and disability activism throughout various exercises and informational sessions. By the end, she felt informed and prepared to provide the best care possible to the people she would soon work with.

On Widmy's first day at Blackstone, she kept busy. "I'm not someone who likes to sit still," she said. She jumped into any work that needed to be done while learning as much as she could about the home and the people who live there. At Blackstone, they joked that she was always asking questions, "But how am I going to get to know people without asking questions?" she explained. Widmy is honored to be welcomed into the homes of the people she supports. She values learning about each person she works with because for her,

"The best way to know how to support someone is to know them individually."

This year, Widmy celebrated Direct Support Professional (DSP) Appreciation Week as an employee! The week holds special meaning for her because she explains, "It reminds me that people are actually thinking about the work that we are doing." When she has a hard day at work, it helps to know how much her work is appreciated. By a stroke of serendipity, Widmy found Springbrook and she continues to use her gifts of kindness and care to exemplify the best attributes of a DSP. She hopes that everyone knows that, "Springbrook is a great place to work. The people we support deserve to have people who care about them beyond a diagnosis."

Widmy's story reminds us to be curious: you never know when you might find your next career or even free ice cream!

Tom Golisano's Five Million Dollar Gift to Springbrook

Written by:
Stephanie Curnalia

Springbrook will receive five million dollars to advance its mission of supporting people with intellectual and developmental disabilities. Philanthropist and Paychex founder, Tom Golisano has given 360 million dollars in donations to over 80 nonprofit organizations, including universities, healthcare providers, animal care groups, and others across Rochester, Buffalo, Syracuse, and nearby regions in New York State. Among the beneficiaries, Springbrook—an organization with a long-standing relationship with Tom Golisano—was among one of the largest recipients.

Golisano's generosity is rooted in his philosophy of giving back. "The only wealth you get to keep is that which you give away," he shared at the Golisano Institute for Business & Entrepreneurship, emphasizing that this donation is not just about money but an opportunity for nonprofits to expand and improve their services. Springbrook is immensely grateful for this generous gift, allowing the organization to carefully assess and allocate resources where they will have the greatest impact.

Golisano and Springbrook have shared a long-standing relationship for over a decade. In 2010, Golisano provided funds to establish the Golisano School, which expanded services for children with autism. In 2012, the organization completed the 22.5 million dollar Coming Home Campaign, opening the Tom Golisano Center for Autism, a state-of-the-art facility offering specialized care and support for people with autism.

Springbrook's programs, which includes applied behavior analysis, art and music therapy, and various educational services, has become a beacon of hope for families across New York State. The organization celebrated the 10th anniversary of the Golisano Center for Autism in October 2022, reflecting on the progress made and the lives transformed over the past decade.

Patricia Kennedy, Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of Springbrook, expressed heartfelt gratitude for Tom Golisano's unwavering support for the organization's mission. She shares, "We are grateful to Tom for his generous gift. His generosity has helped the organization improve the lives of many children who attend the Golisano School program. On behalf of Springbrook, the children and people we support, and the board, we thank him!"

Golisano's continued support and friendship also extends to training Springbrook's nurses through The Golisano Institute for Developmental Disability Nursing, at St. John Fisher University, enhancing the quality of care for people with developmental disabilities. His ongoing commitment continues to inspire and drive the mission of Springbrook and many other nonprofits, marking this donation as a catalyst for positive change in the community.

"We are grateful to Tom for his generous gift. His generosity has helped the organization improve the lives of many children who attend the Golisano School program. On behalf of Springbrook, the children and individuals we support, and the board, we thank him!" - Patricia Kennedy, CEO

THE SCHOOL AT SPRINGBROOK

Jofre's Christmas Mission

Written by: Shaina Gormley

"My prayer is that the boxes will meet the needs and wants of the children they reach."

- Jofre

This past December, 28 children experienced the joy of Christmas thanks to Jofre's incredible dedication and hard work. Jofre, a student at The School at Springbrook, spent an entire year fundraising and gathering donations for Operation Christmas Child. With support from physical therapist Faye Huntington, he launched this inspiring service project at The School. Operation Christmas Child is a global organization that delivers shoeboxes filled with gifts to children in need around the world, spreading holiday cheer and hope. Thanks to Jofre's efforts, these boxes brought smiles to children across the globe this Christmas season.

It is no surprise to anyone who knows Jofre that he spends his time helping others, but this project is particularly near to his heart. When Jofre was five years old, he received a Christmas box while living in an orphanage in Ecuador. The excitement he felt upon receiving a box inspires him to spread that same joy to other children.

The success of Jofre's Operation Christmas Child project was no small feat—it required careful planning, creativity, and determination at every step. Jofre's first phase of the project: milkshakes! Every Friday for a month, Jofre sold milkshakes to cover the shipping cost of the boxes. Jofre and Faye partnered with physical therapist, Deb France, to organize a milkshake fundraiser. He worked with Deb to plan the flavors, gather the supplies, and recruit other therapy team members to help. To advertise, he made signs and emailed school staff. Using adaptive equipment, Jofre made and delivered the milkshakes at The School. These delicious treats were a hit. After all of his hard work, Jofre raised enough money to cover the cost of shipping for 28 boxes.

With the shipping costs fully covered, Jofre turned his attention to gathering item donations from students and staff. He helped brainstorm ideas for the perfect gifts, suggesting footballs and puzzles, while Faye added hair bows and stuffed animals to the list. Together, they compiled a list of needed items for donors. Faye described her favorite part of the project: "I most enjoyed seeing people work together to support Jofre in reaching his goal." This was truly a collaborative effort!

Jofre finds fun and fulfillment in volunteer work. As Faye shares, "He was always excited and proud when people asked him how much he had collected and what they could bring in." Not only is this project a passion of Jofre's, but it has a therapeutic benefit. When Jofre began packing boxes, Faye left him to work independently. Quickly, he learned that this was hard work. In the beginning, he could complete a few boxes before he would want to stop for a social break. Slowly, Jofre developed endurance and focus. With practice, he began packing boxes quickly and independently for longer periods of time.

Throughout the project, Jofre also developed a strong work ethic. The first time he packed boxes he made several mistakes, and Faye helped to fix them. By the end of the project, he was able to recognize his mistakes and ask for help when needed. He takes great pride in his work! This project inspired collaboration between students and staff at The School. Jofre expressed,

"I am thankful to work with Faye, Deb, Janice, Christina, Jessica, Traci, and all Springbrook staff for their support."

This incredible team of people, as well as all of the donors, made Jofre's work a success. Thanks to Jofre, the Springbrook community came together to brighten the Christmas of 28 children this year. For Jofre, his hope for the project's impact is simple and meaningful: "My prayer is that the boxes will meet the needs and wants of the children they reach."

Jofre and Deb France.

Rachel AT THE FORD

Written by:
Shaina Gormley

In May 2024, Springbrook hosted the grand opening of The Ford on Main project (The Ford), a transformative mixed-use development on Main Street in Oneonta, New York. This innovative building addresses a significant need for housing in the city, featuring 24 units, including four units reserved for people with intellectual and developmental disabilities (I/DD).

Among its residents is Rachel, a fiery young woman with a quirky sense of humor. Rachel's apartment is a direct reflection of her spirited personality. The walls are adorned with photographs of family and pets, her original paintings, and movie posters from her teenage years. Each piece tells a story, from the doll her mother made for her as a child to the favorite chair she brought from her childhood home. These treasures serve as daily reminders of the people and memories she holds dear.

Previously living in Stamford, Rachel saw the opportunity to reside in Oneonta as an exciting new adventure. She grew up near Oneonta and was excited to experience living downtown. Now, everything she needs to live independently is within walking distance. Rachel walks down Main Street for doctor's appointments, a quick lunch, and regular nail visits, where she chooses bright colors and long nails for her manicures.

Rachel's move to Oneonta also brought her the support she had been seeking. Within a month of living at The Ford, Rachel connected with Ruth Lawson, a Direct Support Professional for Springbrook, who quickly became a mentor and friend. This summer, Rachel plans to join Ruth and her family for their annual camping trip at a local park. Ever the planner, Rachel has been purchasing camping gear "If I'm going to go camping, I'm going to do it right," she said, her excitement evident.

Rachel with Ruth Lawson, DSP

The Ford on Main is more than just an apartment building; it's a community hub and a cornerstone of Oneonta's Downtown Revitalization Initiative. Its shared living spaces foster a sense of connection among residents, and Rachel thrives in this environment. She recently worked with Ruth to bake cookies, which she delivered to her neighbors, and Rob, the maintenance manager for The Ford on Main apartments.

"It's fun to share with everyone,"

Rachel said. "I even met some new people while handing out cookies." When Rachel's neighbor was sick, she brought her soup and helped to take her dog out, showcasing her caring and community-oriented nature.

One of Rachel's proudest memories since moving into her new home was hosting her family to celebrate her adoption, a cherished annual tradition akin to a birthday in her family. Her mom, sister, and brother joined her for a joyous day, complete with takeout from a local restaurant. She is already planning future gatherings with her friends and family!

Now that she's settled, Rachel is pursuing the next step in her journey: finding employment. As a regular at Tino's and Latte Lounge, she has been inspired to work at a local business. Latte Lounge is located within The Ford's storefront space and serves as an extension of the residential community onto Main Street. Rachel's determination and vibrant personality make her a natural fit for the Oneonta community, and she is excited to contribute to the downtown she enjoys so much.

Rachel's story is one of independence, connection, and possibility. The Ford On Main project has been instrumental in fostering independence for people like Rachel, providing the opportunity and environment necessary to thrive. With her fiery spirit, quirky charm, and strong support system, she has built a solid foundation for a fulfilling life in Oneonta. We can't wait to see what's next for Rachel!

A Journey of Growth and Responsibility

Dates, Dogs and Dreams: Donnie's Story

Written by: Stephanie Curnalia

Donnie beams with pride as he stirs the melted cashew butter in the industrial kitchen of Springbrook's Capstone Day Habilitation (Day Hab) for Vêsucré's latest project, "Dream Dates." These holiday boxes feature cashew butter-salted chocolate dates; a creation Donnie helps prepare. "It's vegan chocolate," Donnie quips with a chuckle, "but it's still good!" His humor and dedication are evident in every detail of his work, a testament to the growth he has achieved on his journey.

Donnie began volunteering at Vêsucré, in the summer of 2024, drawn to its values of sustainability, inclusion, and quality. This local business known for creating happiness-inducing desserts that are plant-based, soy-free, gluten-free, and refined sugar-free, partners with organizations like Springbrook to offer employment opportunities for people with intellectual and developmental disabilities (I/DD). By November, Donnie became an Operations Associate, working Tuesdays and Thursdays in the cafeteria at Day Hab where Vêsucré operates. Tuesdays are "Vêsucré Dessert Days," where Donnie prepares delectable treats like Plant de Crème and the Dream Dates. Thursdays, he helps cook for the "Maketeria," which offers a make-a-bowl lunch option available to Springbrook residents and staff for purchase. This program is a collaborative project between Springbrook and Vêsucré which aims to provide comprehensive training and employment opportunities for people with intellectual and developmental disabilities in the food production and culinary industries. From crafting make-a-bowl options to building Dream Date holiday boxes, Donnie embraces every task with enthusiasm.

Donnie with Vêsucré founder and CEO Sarah Hartmann.

"Donnie's hard work and growth are evident in everything he does."

- Sarah Hartmann
Founder and CEO of Vêsucré

"I love talking while we work. The time spent with the people I work with and being part of cooking for the Maketeria means so much to me,"

Donnie shares. Founder and CEO of Vêsucré Sarah Hartmann knew Donnie had potential from the start. "I knew from day one that he was going to have a job here," she says. "Donnie's hard work and growth are evident in everything he does." Sarah's mission to create a welcoming, fulfilling community that is both rewarding and fun has provided opportunities for people like Donnie to flourish. Chef Charlie Shaw, Vêsucré's operations director, echoes Sarah's sentiment. "Donnie's positivity and work ethic set a precedent that inspires others," he says, proudly patting Donnie's shoulder. "I'm really proud of his growth."

WELLNESS

*"It feels like having my own pets.
I enjoy the affection the dogs share with me."* -Donnie

Donnie's path to success wasn't always easy. "There was a point I was going to quit everything," he admits. "I was late or never showed up. But I've been waiting for years to work at Vêsucré." With support from Springbrook and his former job coach, Shauna Solorzano, Donnie gained the skills and confidence needed for the workplace. "He's progressed far with his independence and work ethic," Shauna says. Donnie credits Vêsucré with fueling his passion for cooking. "I've grown a lot with my knife skills," he says. "I learned to take my time. I've even started using my skills at home by adding more vegetables to my meals." It is evident that Donnie takes great pride in all that he accomplishes with Vêsucré.

Beyond Vêsucré, Donnie has another meaningful role at Springbrook: working with therapy dogs Jake and Bailey in the Physical Therapy department. He takes them outside, rewards them with treats like green beans and frozen carrots, and practices commands like "sit" and "stay." Donnie has been working with Jake and Bailey since they arrived at ten weeks old. Springbrook Physical Therapist Karen Sacco, remarks, "Donnie is very proud of what he has done with the dogs." He shadowed Karen while she worked with the canine trainer to learn how to best train the therapy dogs. "It feels like having my own pets," Donnie says. "I enjoy the affection the dogs share with me."

This responsibility has strengthened Donnie's sense of routine. Karen proudly adds,

"The dogs respond very well to Donnie."

Donnie looks forward to his time with Jake and Bailey, and even commented that they know when he is approaching the room. Their wagging tails and slobbery kisses reassure Donnie that he's made a big impact on the therapy dogs' lives.

As Donnie continues to grow, he's excited about upcoming projects, including helping prepare meals for Vêsucré's "Friends of Christmas" event, which will provide 800 meals to the community. With Vêsucré expanding its product availability and creating new opportunities through another expanding program, called the "Makery," Donnie's journey is far from over. Reflecting on his accomplishments, Donnie shares,

"I've learned that I want to be a chef someday.
I'm really proud of how far I've come."

From crafting desserts to caring for therapy dogs, Donnie's story is one of resilience, passion, and growth—a reminder that everyone has the potential to thrive when given the opportunity and support.

Before his move in 2021 to community homes, Andrew lived with his parents. He was a quiet young man who often sat out of group activities. He spent most of his time looking out the window and keeping to himself. If asked a question Andrew would avoid answering. His parents often spoke of the trouble they had with getting him out of bed, getting him in the shower, and out of the house.
